Within this project, Acted promotes and cultivates the independence of CSOs by providing support and enhancing their operational and technical capabilities to ensure a conservation action in Uzbekistan. This approach aims to empower CSOs to operate autonomously and to replicate their successful initiatives in the future. In addition, this action supports CSOs in advocating for their needs and in allowing them to better engage with governmental bodies and environmental institutions on a national scale. Furthermore, the project aims to develop the understanding of the CSOs on conservation outcomes and to align their work with biodiversity conservation through targeted operational and technical capacity-building training.

PROJECT GOAL:

to strengthen the capacity of CSOs, as well as to improve their technical and practical knowledge to effectively involve communities in the promotion of conservation activities

HOW THIS WILL BE ACHIEVED:

Objective 1:

By strengthening CSOs' operational capacities to engage effectively in environmental protection.

Objective 2:

By increasing CSOs' technical and practical knowledge, as well as specific skills to effectively engage themselves and communities in promoting conservation actions.

Objective 3:

By improving the dialogue and cooperation between CSOs and communities and government agencies responsible for implementing national biodiversity strategies to better promote conservation actions.
